Introduction

The declaration of COVID-19 as a global pandemic by the World Health Organisation led to the disruption of effective teaching and learning in many schools in South Africa. The majority of learners in various grades spent less time in class due to the phased-in approach and rotational/ alternate attendance system that was implemented by various provinces. Consequently, the majority of schools were not able to complete all the relevant content designed for specific grades in accordance with the Curriculum and Assessment Policy Statements in most subjects.

As part of mitigating against the impact of COVID-19 on the current Grade 12, the Department of Basic Education (DBE) worked in collaboration with subject specialists from various Provincial Education Departments (PEDs) developed this Self-Study Guide. The Study Guide covers those topics, skills and concepts that are located in Grade 12, that are critical to lay the foundation for Grade 12. The main aim is to close the pre-existing content gaps in order to strengthen the mastery of subject knowledge in Grade 12. More importantly, the Study Guide will engender the attitudes in the learners to learning independently while mastering the core cross-cutting concepts.

Explanation

- Porter's Five Forces model is based on five important forces that will determine competitive power in the market environment of a business.
- Porter's Five Forces model helps the business to understand both the strength of its current competitive position and the advantages of expanding.

Porter's Five Forces	Application
Power of buyers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Assess how easy it is for buyers/customers to drive prices down. • Determine the number of buyers/the importance of each buyer to the business and the cost of switching to other products. • A few powerful buyers are often able to dictate their terms to the business. • Buyers buying in bulk can bargain for prices in their favour. • If buyers can do without the business's products, then they have more power to determine the prices and terms of sale

Porter's Five Forces	Application
Bargaining power of suppliers/ Power of suppliers	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Suppliers that deliver high quality product may have power over the business. • Assess the power of the suppliers in influencing prices. • The more powerful the suppliers, the less control the business has over them. • The smaller the number of suppliers, the more powerful they may be as the choice of suppliers may be limited. • Identify the kind of power suppliers' have in terms of the quality of products/services/ reliability/ability to make prompt deliveries, etc.
Threat/ Barriers of new entrants to the market	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If the barriers to enter the market are low, then it is easy for new businesses to enter the market/industry. • If the business is highly profitable, it will attract potential competitors that want to benefit from high profits. • New competitors can quickly/easily enter the market if it takes little time/ money to enter the market. • If there are a few suppliers of a product/service but many buyers, it may be easy to enter the market.

Power of competitors/ Competitive rivalry	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Competitors selling the same/similar products/services may have a greater impact on the market of the business. • If competitors have a unique product/service, then they will have greater power. • A business with many competitors in the same market has very little power in their market. • Draw up a competitor's profile so that they can determine their own strength as well as that of competitors. • Some businesses have necessary resources to start price wars and continue selling at a loss until some/all competitors leave the market.
Threat of substitution/ substitutes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Establish whether the sellers of substitute products have improved their product/sell lower quality goods at lower prices. • If the business's product can be easily substituted, it weakens the power of the business in the market. • If the business sells unique products, it will not be threatened by substitute products. • Assess if customers are using substitute products/services and determine reasons for using substitutes. • Change/improve the design and quality of their products to remain competitive.

- Total Quality Management refers to all aspects of quality within the business. It is the responsibility of everyone in the organisation from top management to general workers.
- Businesses strive to get it right the first time by implementing the elements of TQM.
- The focus is on improving the quality of products and services to satisfy the needs of customers.

Elements of TQM:

4.1. Continuous skills development / education and training

- A skills audit should be conducted to determine the qualifications and competence of staff that can influence the quality of products/processes.
- Employees who lack skills should be trained in line with their job descriptions.
- Regularly evaluate the effectiveness of the training.
- Suitable induction programmes that promote quality should be implemented.

4.2. Total client satisfaction

- The business should understand current and future customer needs.
- Quality products and services satisfy customer's needs and expectations.
- Customers will be satisfied if products and services meet their needs, requirements, and expectations.
- Businesses need to conduct effective market research to determine customer's needs and to develop products and services that will meet or exceed those needs

4.3. Adequate financing and capacity

- There should be enough funds available for proper quality management processes, e.g., systems to prevent errors in the process/detect defects in raw materials.
- Funds should be available for market and product research to gather information on quality improvement.
- Suitable equipment should be available for testing and maintaining high quality standards.
- Funds should only be used to buy the best quality raw materials to avoid/prevent faulty products.

4.4. Continuous improvement of processes and systems (including the application of the 'PDCA' model/cycle)

4.5. Monitoring and evaluation of quality processes

- Monitoring/Evaluation systems and quality assurance processes should be in place to prevent product defects and wastages.
- Allow for quality control checks and procedures at key production points.

ACTIVITY 3

Impact of TQM element on large businesses

Continuous skills development / education and training

Advantages	Disadvantages
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The human resources department is dedicated to skills training and development. Human resources experts ensure that training programmes are relevant to ensure increased customer satisfaction 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Poor communication system may prevent effective training from taking place. Trained employees may leave for better jobs after they gained more skills

Total client satisfaction

Advantages	Disadvantages
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The business uses market research to measure/ monitor customer satisfaction/analyse customers' needs. Continuously promote a positive business image. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Employees in large companies rarely meet their customers and do not always have a clear idea of what will satisfy their needs. Advantages	Disadvantages
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> They can afford to have systems in place to prevent errors in processes/defects in raw materials/ products. Able to afford product research/market researchers to gather information. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Expansion on large scale can cost more than the business are able to raise through issuing shares. The risk is usually very high

Impact of continuous improvement of processes and systems

Advantages	Disadvantages

Enough capital resources are available for new equipment required for systems and processes 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Implementation of new systems and processes can be time consuming because there are many employees to whom the system should be 'sold' and communicated.

Impact of monitoring and evaluation of quality processes

Advantages	Disadvantages
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> May be equipped to get things done right the first time. Improve performance and maintain high quality standards. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> It often takes longer to detect problems or respond to weaknesses. It is not viable to check quality of all the products

A group of workers who do the same or similar work, who meet regularly to identify, analyse, and solve quality related problems

Importance of quality circles as part of Continuous improvement to processes and systems

- Quality circles discuss ways of improving the quality of work/workmanship.

- Schedule activities to eliminate duplication of tasks/activities.
- Share responsibility for quality output amongst management and workers.
- Train employees at all levels, so that everyone understands their role in quality management.
